Charles' granddaughter, Beulah Green Carey, remembers, "Grandpa Green died when my father (Herman) was seventeen years old. Dad told me that he was a strong man. He could lift a small ore car on his back. That was his great feat. I think he ran a saloon, but that was considered a respectable business in those days. He was well-liked." Granddaughter Lawana remembers: "My father's father died at about 43 on my Dad's 16th birthday. He was out currying a horse and died of a heart attack."
